Location data required to access content on mobile devices for any Live TVÂ .Mapping of a novel genetic locus for female dominance and male hybrid inviability. Male hybrids of Drosophila melanogaster are inviable. This phenotype is strongest when males are inseminated by inviable females of the opposite sex, indicating that males of this species are hemizygous for hybrid inviability genes. A quantitative trait locus (QTL) analysis of data on 17 isofemale lines derived from a wild population of D. melanogaster in Oxfordshire, UK, identified the ql09-III28 region of chromosome III as a locus affecting the male-male and female-male hybrid inviability phenotype. Identification of a novel locus for hybrid inviability, and knowledge of the chromosomal position of this and other such loci, should facilitate the analysis of the genetic basis of hybrid incompatibilities in D. melanogaster and other species. Madison's growing $150 million three-year campaign to pay for the new stadium, arena and other improvements downtown includes a $30 million fundraising push for community leaders and wealthy individuals to go along with the $110 million in public spending. But it won't be as easy as identifying potential donors and striking up conversations with those who can close a $65 million in grants from the state. Madison's efforts include soliciting aid from some of the top-earning individuals and businesses in the state capital, and encouraging them to help a new chamber of commerce. The city must raise the lion's share of the money for the stadium, arena and other improvements downtown. The city has pledged $27 million from the economic development department's capital fund, and using general obligation bonds to pay for the stadium cost. Madison's plan is to collect $
