What's New In?

Cone-beam computed tomography in the diagnosis of vascular ring anomaly. Congenital cardiovascular anomaly is the most common cause of mediastinal mass in infants. In a 15-day-old child who referred with progressive difficulty in breathing, chest x-ray revealed air-filled upper mediastinum and left upper lung. Direct airway compression and bronchial obstructions were reported to be the cause of respiratory failure. Cone-beam computed tomography (CT) scan of the mediastinum revealed multiple filling defects in different calibers of the trachea and the main left bronchus. A vascular ring anomaly was diagnosed. Vascular rings are usually present during birth and the most common is the anterior cervical, with a high incidence of cyanotic heart disease. Cystic airway malformations are rare and usually occur in isolation but they may be associated with a bicuspid aortic valve, Down's syndrome and other syndromes. Vascular rings are usually diagnosed with angiography because of the high association with cardiovascular anomalies. CT scan is the first-choice method for the diagnosis and adequate treatment./ * Copyright 2009-2015 the original author or authors. * * Licensed under the Apache License, Version 2.0 (the "License"); * you may not use this file except in compliance with the License. * You may obtain a copy of the License at * * * * Unless required by applicable law or agreed to in writing, software * distributed under the License is distributed on an "AS IS" BASIS, * WITHOUT WARRANTIES OR CONDITIONS OF ANY KIND, either express or implied. * See the License for the specific language governing permissions and * limitations under the License. */ package org.apache.ibatis.submitted.jdbc_decimal_insert_with_select; import java.math.BigDecimal; import java.util.List; import java.util.Random; import org.apache.ibatis.io.Resources; import org.apache.ibatis.session.ResultSetType; import org.apache.ibatis.session
